Introduction

- consists of research studies published in biomedical journal
- the most current resource for information.
- provides details research methodology and scientific results that lead to therapeutic conclusions.
- to determine whether the study are sound based on the strength of the research techniques and scientific results of the study.

Introduction

- The primary literature is growing at an exponential rate.
- Over 20,000 biomedical journals are published annually.
- An abbreviated list of journals useful to the practice pharmacy is provided below.

Introduction

- Most of these journals publish a combination of primary research studies and secondary review articles.
- The journals available in a particular practice setting will depend on the focus of the practice and the interests of the practitioner .

Journal Contents

- Clinical Trials
- Editorials
- Letter to the editor
- Meta-Analysis (systemic review)
- Practice Guideline(s)
- Randomized Controlled Trials
- Review articles
- Comments
- Comparative Studies
- News
- Addresses
- Bibliography
- Case Reports
- Clinical Trial, Phase I, II, III&IV
- Controlled Clinical Trial
- Corrected and Republished Article
- Evaluation Studies
- Government Publications

The Basic Structure of an article

- ❑ Abstract/ Summary
 - Overview or summary of the work highlighting of results
 - General statement of significance
- ❑ Introduction
 - Background information: history, pathophysiology ,clinical presentation
 - Review of the work of others
 - Rationale for present study
 - Objectives of the study
- ❑ Methods/materials & methods/patients & methods
 - Study design
 - Subject selection procedures
 - Methods of measurement
 - Description of analytic techniques
- ❑ Results
 - What happened ?
 - Graphics-tables , charts, figures –that summarize findings

The Basic Structure of an article

□ Discussion/comment/conclusion

- Meanings, significance of work
- critique of study: discussion of limitations as well as strengths, further analysis
- Comparison with work of others
- Disclaimers, equivocation apologies, chest thumping, speculation, instruction, fantasy, and so on

□ References/bibliography

- Evidence that work of others has been considered
- Leads to further exploration of the subject

Basic Study Designs

- Two basic study designs:
 1. Descriptive.
 2. Explanatory.

DESCRIPTIVE

- Document and communicate experience: share ideas, programs, treatments, unusual events, and observations being search for explanations

EXPLANATORY

- Examine etiology, cause, efficacy, using the strategy of complications

EXPERIMENTAL

- Evaluate efficacy of therapeutic, educational administrative interventions
- Investigator controls allocation

OBSERVATIONAL

- Seek causes, etiologies, predictors, better diagnosis
- Investigator observe nature

Descriptive Studies

- Studies that record events, observations, and activities.
- They provide no detailed explanations or evidence.
- They serve as invaluable documentations lead to exciting discoveries.

Types of Descriptive Studies

1. Case Reports
 2. Case Series
 3. Clinical Series (describe outcomes and record for others experience).
 4. Population (prevalence).
 5. Program or course.
- } (alert, complications,...etc).

Explanatory Studies

- They are studies seek for an answer for a question.

Types of Explanatory Studies

- They can be either:
 1. Experimental.
 2. Observational.

Types of Experimental Studies

1. Controlled trials (active intervention from the researcher).
2. Clinical trials.
3. Health-care trials.
4. Intervention trials.

Observational Studies

- They are studies utilizing comparisons to examine and explain medical mysteries.

Types of Observational Studies

1. Case control design (begin with outcome and search for factors).
2. Follow-up design (begin with people who have not experience the outcome yet).
3. Cross-sectional design (mix design).

DESCRIPTIVE

- Case Reports
- Case Series
- Clinical Series

EXPLANATORY

EXPERIMENTAL

- Controlled Trial:
- Clinical Trial
 - Health-care Trial
 - Intervention

OBSERVATIONAL

- Case Control:
- Retrospective
 - Case-referent
 - Case-compare

- Follow-up:
- Cohort
 - Incidence
 - Prospective
 - Longitudinal

- Retrospective Follow-up:
- Historical prospective
 - Retrospective cohort
 - Nonconcurrent follow-up

- Cross-sectional
- Prevalence

Experimental or controlled trial design

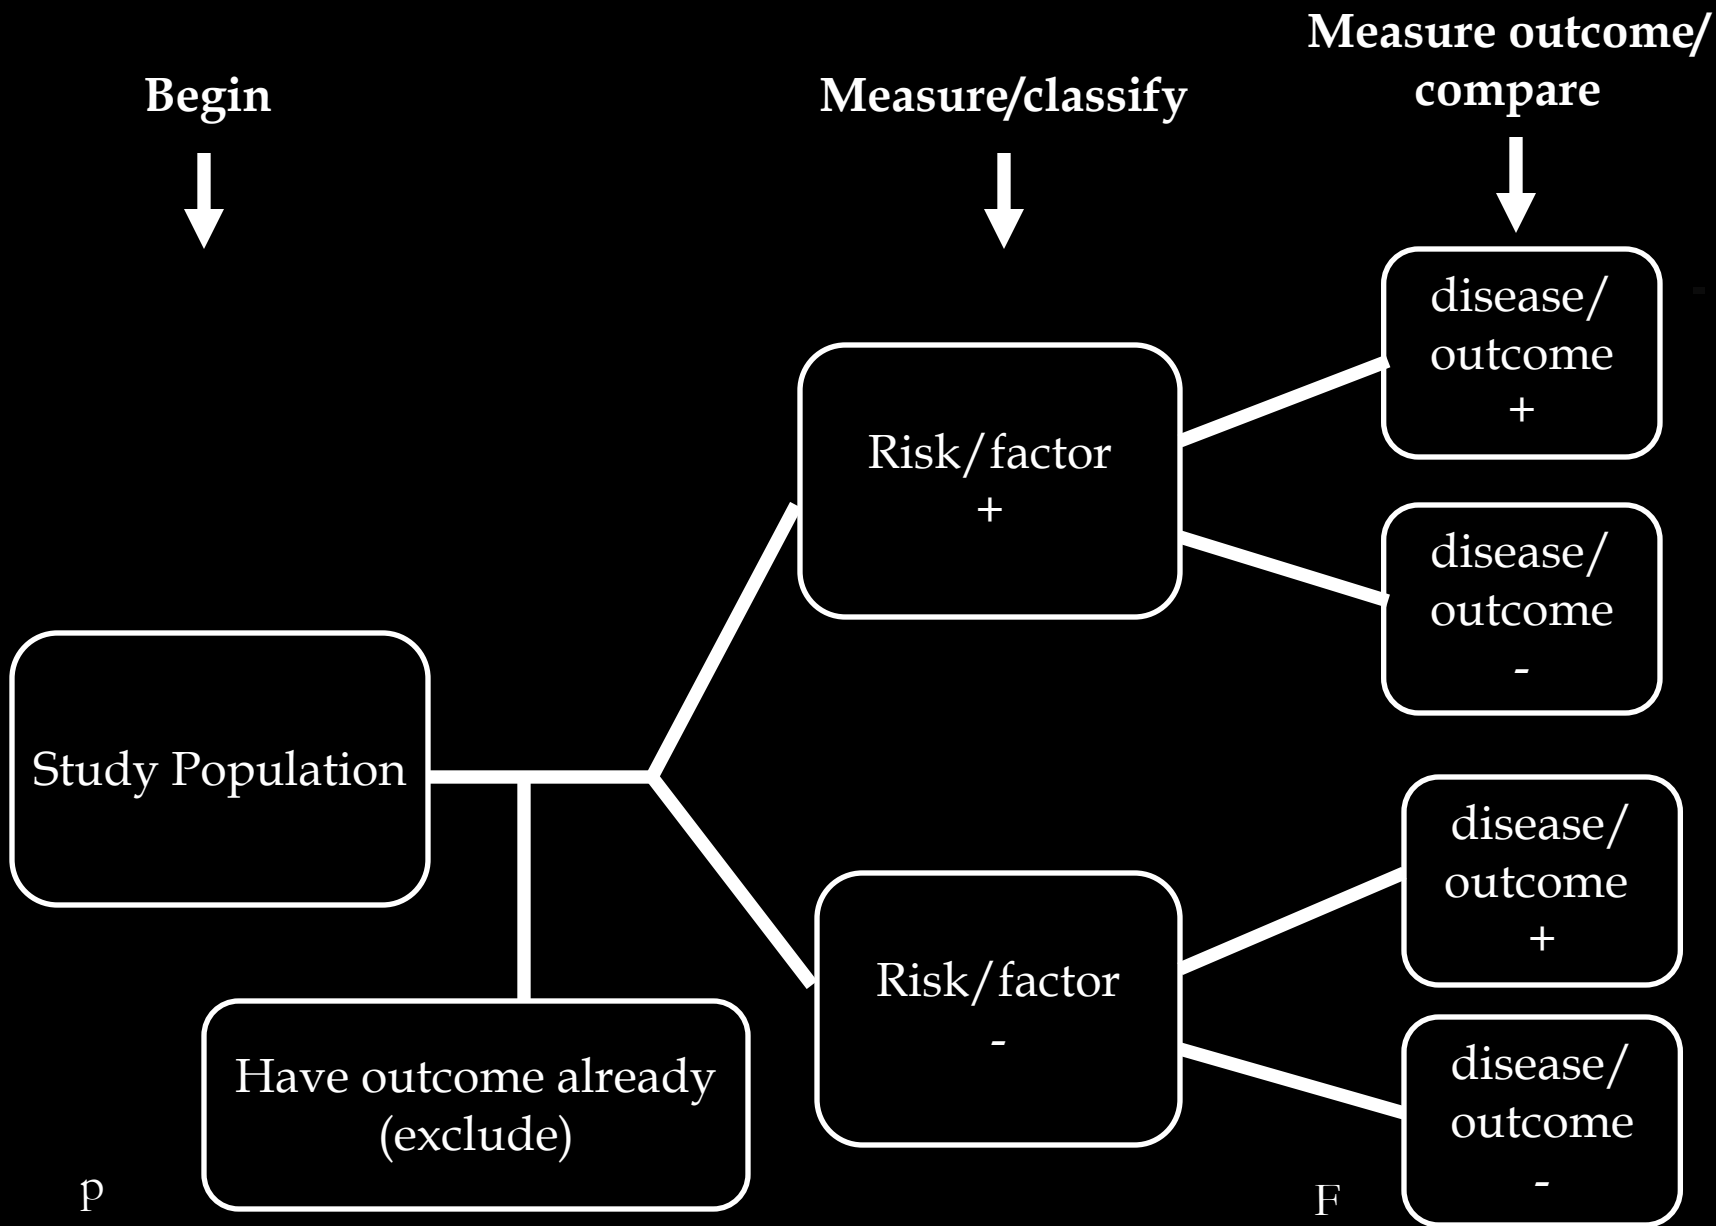

Case-Control design

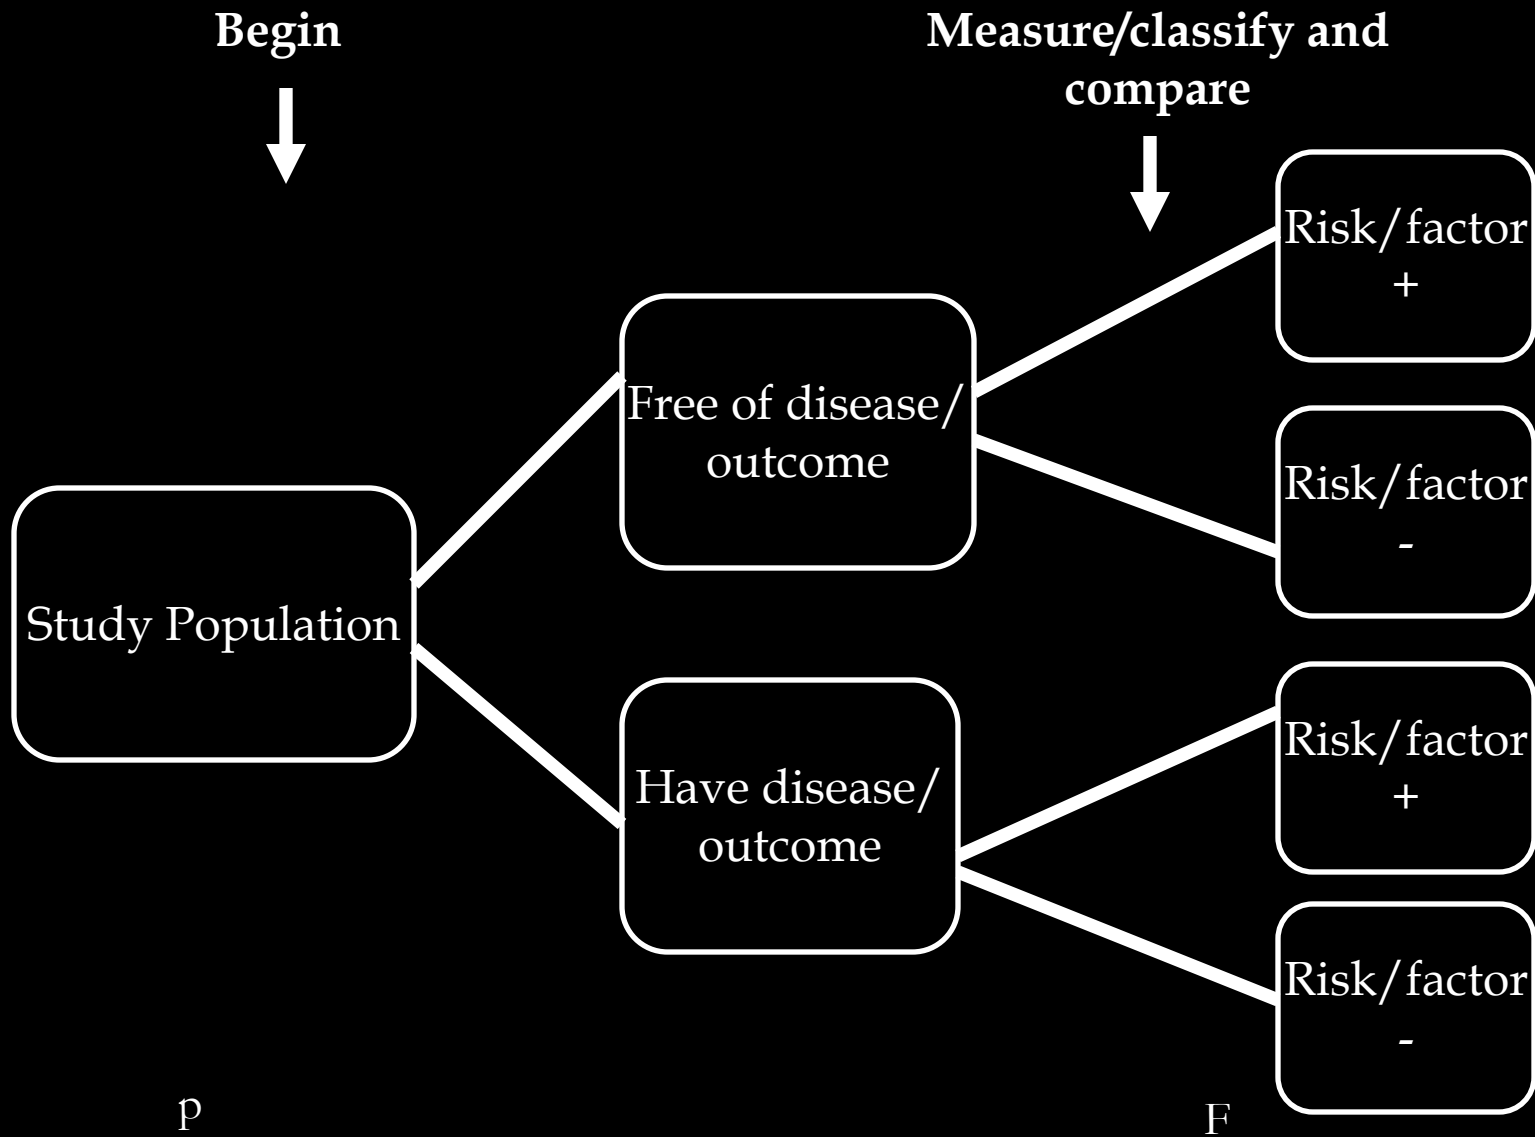

Follow-up study design

Cross-sectional study design

Definition

□ Randomization:

- It is an and important aspect of study design
- It is equivalent to flipping a coin and helps ensure that treatment group are similar in regard to clinical and socioeconomic factors that may affect treatment outcome
- Diminish bias

Types of Blinding

- Single-blind

Either subjects or investigators are unaware of assignment of subjects to active or control groups.

- Double-blind

Both subjects and investigators are unaware of assignment of subjects to active or control groups.

Meta-Analysis (systemic review)

- A statistical technique used to combine the results from different studies to obtain a quantitative estimate of the overall effect of a particular intervention or exposure on a defined outcome.

Definition

□ Editorial

- an article in a newspaper or other periodical presenting the opinion of the publisher, editor, or editors.

Definition

□ Bibliography

- It is a list of resources about a particular topic.
- Bibliographies are often found at the ends of scholarly books and journal articles.
- An entire book can be a bibliography, too.

Definition

□ Guideline

- A statement or other indication of policy or procedure by which to determine a course of action: guidelines for the completion of tax returns
- Guidance relative to setting standards or determining a course of action

Definition

□ Letter to the Editor

- It is statement that represent new results, likely to stimulate further research and be of interest to the wider range of knowledge all the results should be sufficiently new and important to merit rapid publication as a Letter, which implies accelerated refereeing procedures.
- This should be made clear either in the body of the Letter, if appropriate, or with a supporting cover letter from the author on submission to the journal.
