

References for community health nursing

- 1- Carmel Blackie, Frances M. Appleby - 1998 - A key text for post-registration community nurses, and pre-registration nurses who want to work in the community.
- 2- Community Health Nursing: Frameworks for Practice Dianne Watkins, Judy Edwards, Pam Gastrell Baillière Tindall, 2003 This new edition of a highly successful key textbook for community health courses has been fully updated to reflect the changes in primary health care over the last decade. There are new chapters on the prevention of physical child abuse, community mental health nursing, community learning disability nursing and school nursing and greater emphasis on the significance of public health as a framework for practice
- 3- Community Health Nursing: Caring for the Public's Health Jones & Bartlett Learning, 2001 The book is designed to be used throughout the undergraduate nursing curriculum, as well as in traditional community health nursing theory and clinical courses. Ideal courses include Community Health Nursing, Nursing Care III, Nursing Care of the Community, Community Nursing Clinical, and Community Nursing Theory.
- 4- Nursing for Public Health: Population Based Care Pauline M. Craig, Grace M. Lindsay Churchill Livingstone, 2000 As the largest group of health care professionals, nurses have a growing influence on the health of the population. This is a key book in making the transition from individualised care to population-based care.