Body Language

Body language impacts a great deal of how we communicate with others, and can reflect quite accurately what's going on inside us.

The difference between the words people speak and our understanding of what they are saying comes from non-verbal communication, known as "body language." By increasing our awareness of the signs and signals of body language, we can more easily understand other people, and more effectively communicate with them.

Body language includes movements and gestures (head, arms, hands, and legs), posture, muscle tension, eye contact, skin coloring, even people's breathing rate and perspiration. Additionally, the tone of voice, the rate of speech and the pitch of the voice all add to the words that are being used.
